

Choosing Your FINANCIAL INSTITUTION

Let's start with THE BASICS

As you contemplate moving beyond your piggy bank, the two types of financial institutions that you're most likely to deal with are banks and credit unions. They offer essentially the same products and services, including savings and chequing accounts, credit cards, auto loans, mortgages and investment products, but their values and motivations are very different.

CREDIT UNION

- Member-owned financial co-operative
- People before profits—a portion of earnings are distributed to credit union members and communities in the form of profit-sharing, lower loan rates or higher yields on savings
- Run by a local board of directors who are elected by fellow credit union members
- Members can vote on how their credit union is run
- Membership eligibility is typically open; make sure you check with your local credit union

BANK

- Shareholder-owned financial institution—not owned by bank customers
- For profit—profits not shared with bank customers
- Run by board of directors, not necessarily bank customers
- Customers have no say in how their bank is run
- Open eligibility; anyone can be a customer

PIGGY BANK

- Owned by you
- No costs, earnings or profits
- Limited features and security
- Susceptible to dust and breakage

Think about YOUR ACCESS

BANK

Access to money while travelling

The big banks have ATMs in most major cities. This will give you free access to your money nationwide. However, if you need to use another financial institution or convenience store ATM, get ready to pay a higher service charge.

Unlike national banks that have ATMs across the country, credit unions are typically community based, with far fewer locations. However, most Canadian credit unions belong to a shared ATM network that allows you to use other credit union and bank ATMs free of charge.

Is there an app for that?

Banks, especially the larger ones, typically offer great technology. Banking apps will support your love for on-demand banking on your smartphone.

You may not think that credit unions provide the latest technology; however, most have caught on and provide mobile apps that are comparable to the apps from the banks.
