Organizing Your FINANCES

- IT'S A -

A simple guide to determine what documents to keep and what documents are OK to toss!

Pension plan documents

Copies of wills, living wills, trusts, and powers of attorney Military discharge papers

Copies of burial deeds and plots Safe-deposit box inventory

Ideally in an organized and lockable filing cabinet and backed up on the cloud

Appliance manuals and warranties House and mortgage documents

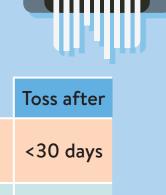

Insurance policies Pehicle titles and loan documents withdrawal slips

Utility and phone bills

Credit card statements

<30 days

45 days

	١٢		4 Bank Statement	.S	ı year
			5 Pay stubs		1 year
			6 Medical records	3	5 years
			7 Tax returns and supporting documents		6 years
			8 Investment statements		6 years
			Make sure that the transaction is reflected on your bank statement and then get rid of the ATM slip.	be sure to your T ²	for one year; to match them to T4 slip before you shred.
			the Alm shp.

Shred credit card statements after 45 days, but hang onto those statements that you may need for business, for taxes, as proof of purchase, or for insurance.

You only need to keep

Shred them after you've paid them, unless they contain tax-deductible expenses.

bank statements for one year. However, if records are related to your taxes, business expenses, home improvements, mortgage payments or major purchases, hold onto them for six years.

Keep records for five years from the time treatment for the symptoms ends. Retain prescription and health insurance information. You need to hold onto six years. Shred monthly statements as new ones arrive, but keep annual statements until the sale of each asset within the your returns and all supporting documents for account occurs and for six years thereafter, in case you get audited.

A good rule of thumb: If you will need to venture down to a government office, wait in line at a hospital or sit on the phone for an hour to retrieve a document, then it's likely best to hold onto it. If you can easily pop online and retrieve a document, then you likely don't need to keep a physical copy.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Sources: Canada Revenue Agency, Jill on Money, Lifehacker.com, Mint.com, Suze Orman